

TAMU-LED GROUP PROGRAMS

Exploring the Options for TAMU Faculty, Staff and Student Leaders

See Page 2 for Brief Descriptions

TAMU-LED GROUP PROGRAMS

FACULTY-LED PROGRAMS

Faculty-led programs are led by A&M faculty and may be short-term up to a full semester. Students earn A&M credit and more than 50% of the study abroad course contact hours are taught abroad. Faculty-led programs may be managed by Education Abroad or by the College or Department.

FIELD TRIPS

Field Trips are short-term programs led by A&M faculty or staff and coordinated by an academic College or Department. For credit bearing trips, students take A&M courses and more than 50% of the course contact hours are taught on-campus or online. Field trips may also be non-credit bearing and may not have an associated course.

UNIT-LED TRIPS

Unit-led trips are short-term programs that are led by A&M staff who are not part of an academic college. These trips are typically not credit bearing.

STUDENT GROUP TRIPS

Student Group trips are short-term programs that are led by A&M student leaders and often involve service learning, volunteering, research, or professional development. These trips are typically not credit bearing.